

Vladimir Ilić (born in Zrenjanin in 1961) is a full professor of sociology at the Department of Sociology, Faculty of Philosophy, University of Belgrade. He is employed at this Faculty by 1986; full professor by 2006.

At the same Faculty he received his B.A. (1985) M.A. (1989) and Ph.D. (1994) degrees in sociology.

The area of his academic interest are Methodology of Social Research, Sociology of Knowledge as well as Ethnic Studies.

In the Department of Sociology he teaches the following courses: Methodology of Social Research 1 and 2, Forms of Critic of Socialism, Research of Ethnic Relations (undergraduate level), Methodology (M.A. level) and Methods of Researching Social Phenomena and Epistemological Foundations and Methods in Social Research (Ph.D. level).

He was a president of Yugoslav Sociological Association.

He has published several books and many articles, among them:

Objectivity, systematicity and reliability in implementing observation method in social sciences (2014 in Serbo-Croatian)

The view of a desirable manner of the organization of political life (2013 in Serbo-Croatian)

Different comprehensions of observation in sociology and anthropology (2013 in Serbo-Croatian)

The second Alexandrian text-type on content analysis (2012 in Serbo-Croatian)

The first Alexandrian text-type on content analysis (2011 in Serbo-Croatian)

Vajdaság : lehetőség a múlton és az interetnikus összetűzéseken való felülkerekedésre (2002 in Hungarian)

Yugoslavia : displacement from Kosovo. From patronage to self-help (2001)

Mastering the past in Vojvodina (2003)

Otpor" - in or beyond politics (2001)

Minorities and refugees in Vojvodina (2001)

Forms of Critic of Socialism (1998 in Serbo-Croatian)

(with Slobodan Szejić) Nationalism in Vojvodina : a secondary analysis (1995)

Functionalism in Sociology (1995 in Serbo-Croatian)